

Last Call Return

The phone stops ringing just as you reach it. You wonder who called and if they will call back. With Last Call Return, you don't have to wait – you can find out who called and automatically redial the number if you choose.

To activate

You'll hear the phone number of the most recent caller.
To return the call, press 1.

How to use Last Call Return

- To find out the number of your last caller, lift the receiver and press 69.
- You'll be provided with the phone number of the caller, even if you couldn't answer the call. Blocked numbers will not be announced.
- If you decide to return this call, simply press 1 and your phone will dial the number.
- If the call you're trying to return is busy, hang up. Your phone will continue to redial the busy line for up to 30 minutes.
- When the line is no longer busy, a distinctive ring lets you know. Simply pick up the phone and the call will connect.
- Works with most local and some long-distance numbers within your area.
- If you don't want your phone to keep redialing the number, press 89 at any time to cancel.

Available in most areas. Not all calls will be identified, and some calls may be identified but may not be able to be returned. Charges apply if the call is identified. In selected states, blocked calls cannot be returned. Some restrictions apply. Measured service and long-distance charges may apply for completed calls.
